Noirmoutier

TOURIST OFFICE

Take time.

The time to live, to enjoy,
The time to laugh, to share.

In our hectic lives, it's a good thing to set sail and get away.

To press pause.

On Noirmoutier Island, you live time differently. It gets slower when you make the most of its wild and preserved nature, it gets faster when you fly off, carried by waves of adrenaline.

Sometimes, even, it seems to stop, when you come across a stone windmill, a typical village, a thousand-year-old forest.

Wintertime or summertime, eventually time no longer matters when you enjoy the timeless pleasures of a fresh oyster, a sunset, a sunny nap.

Forget time and catch the moment, on Noirmoutier Island.

Time

TO GO

Checklist of the must-have to slip into your suitcase (to discover all the faces of Noirmoutier Island).

Binoculars to watch birds frolic in the nature reserves

A pair of running shoes to exert yourself in front of the ocean

Sunglasses to make the most of the 2,300 hours of sun a year

A paddle board to sail around the island

A wetsuit for sea hiking, to walk in the water even in autumn and winter

An oyster knife to enjoy a hamper facing the sea

A basket to taste all specialities

A good book to let your mind wander in the shade of a maritime pine

A camera to immortalize lights so special

A shrimping net to go shrimp fishing

THE REVITALIZING island

Take your time

Whatever the season, Noirmoutier Island is the ideal place to reconnect with a serene preserved nature. On foot or by bike, its 50 kilometres of marked paths and 83 kilometres of cycling paths are so many invitations to discover soothing scenery. Dunes, forests of pines or holm oaks, wild coves, long beaches of fine sand, salterns... Here, all settings let themselves be tamed, and time comes to a standstill.

Immerse yourself in the landscape

The island's heart contains many treasures. Around La Guérinière, the walking trail "By way of windmills" suggests a nice shortcut through the Noirmoutier landscapes: the oyster harbour of Le Bonhomme, the salterns, the wood of Les Éloux and the four windmills in La Court. Standing proudly in front of the ocean, they are part of the 23 preserved windmills bearing witness to the island's great milling tradition.

Treat yourself to a moment of grace on a beach in Le Vieil

A cove of fine sand lined with little whitewashed houses with blue shutters. A poetic setting that was used as a backdrop for a number of works of the seventh art. At the end of the day, you can lie down in front of the ocean and admire the sunset light bouncing and sparkling on the waves. But the most secret experience on La Madeleine Beach is to be lived at dawn, with the grand comeback of the sun. An unforgettable moment of grace.

Marvel at the wildlife

In the nineteenth century, the Jacobsen family shaped the island by setting up seawalls in the manner of Dutch polders. This is how was created, near the end point of the Gois causeway, the vast Sebastopol polder, where it's nice to walk and watch, in all discretion, teeming wildlife. Here, more than 900 plant and animal species, including 210 species of sedentary or migratory birds, live in harmony. The otter and water vole live next to the Maraîchine cow, along with the Common Tern, the Mediterranean Gull and the Pied Avocet during the nesting period.

Lose your way in a coloured maze

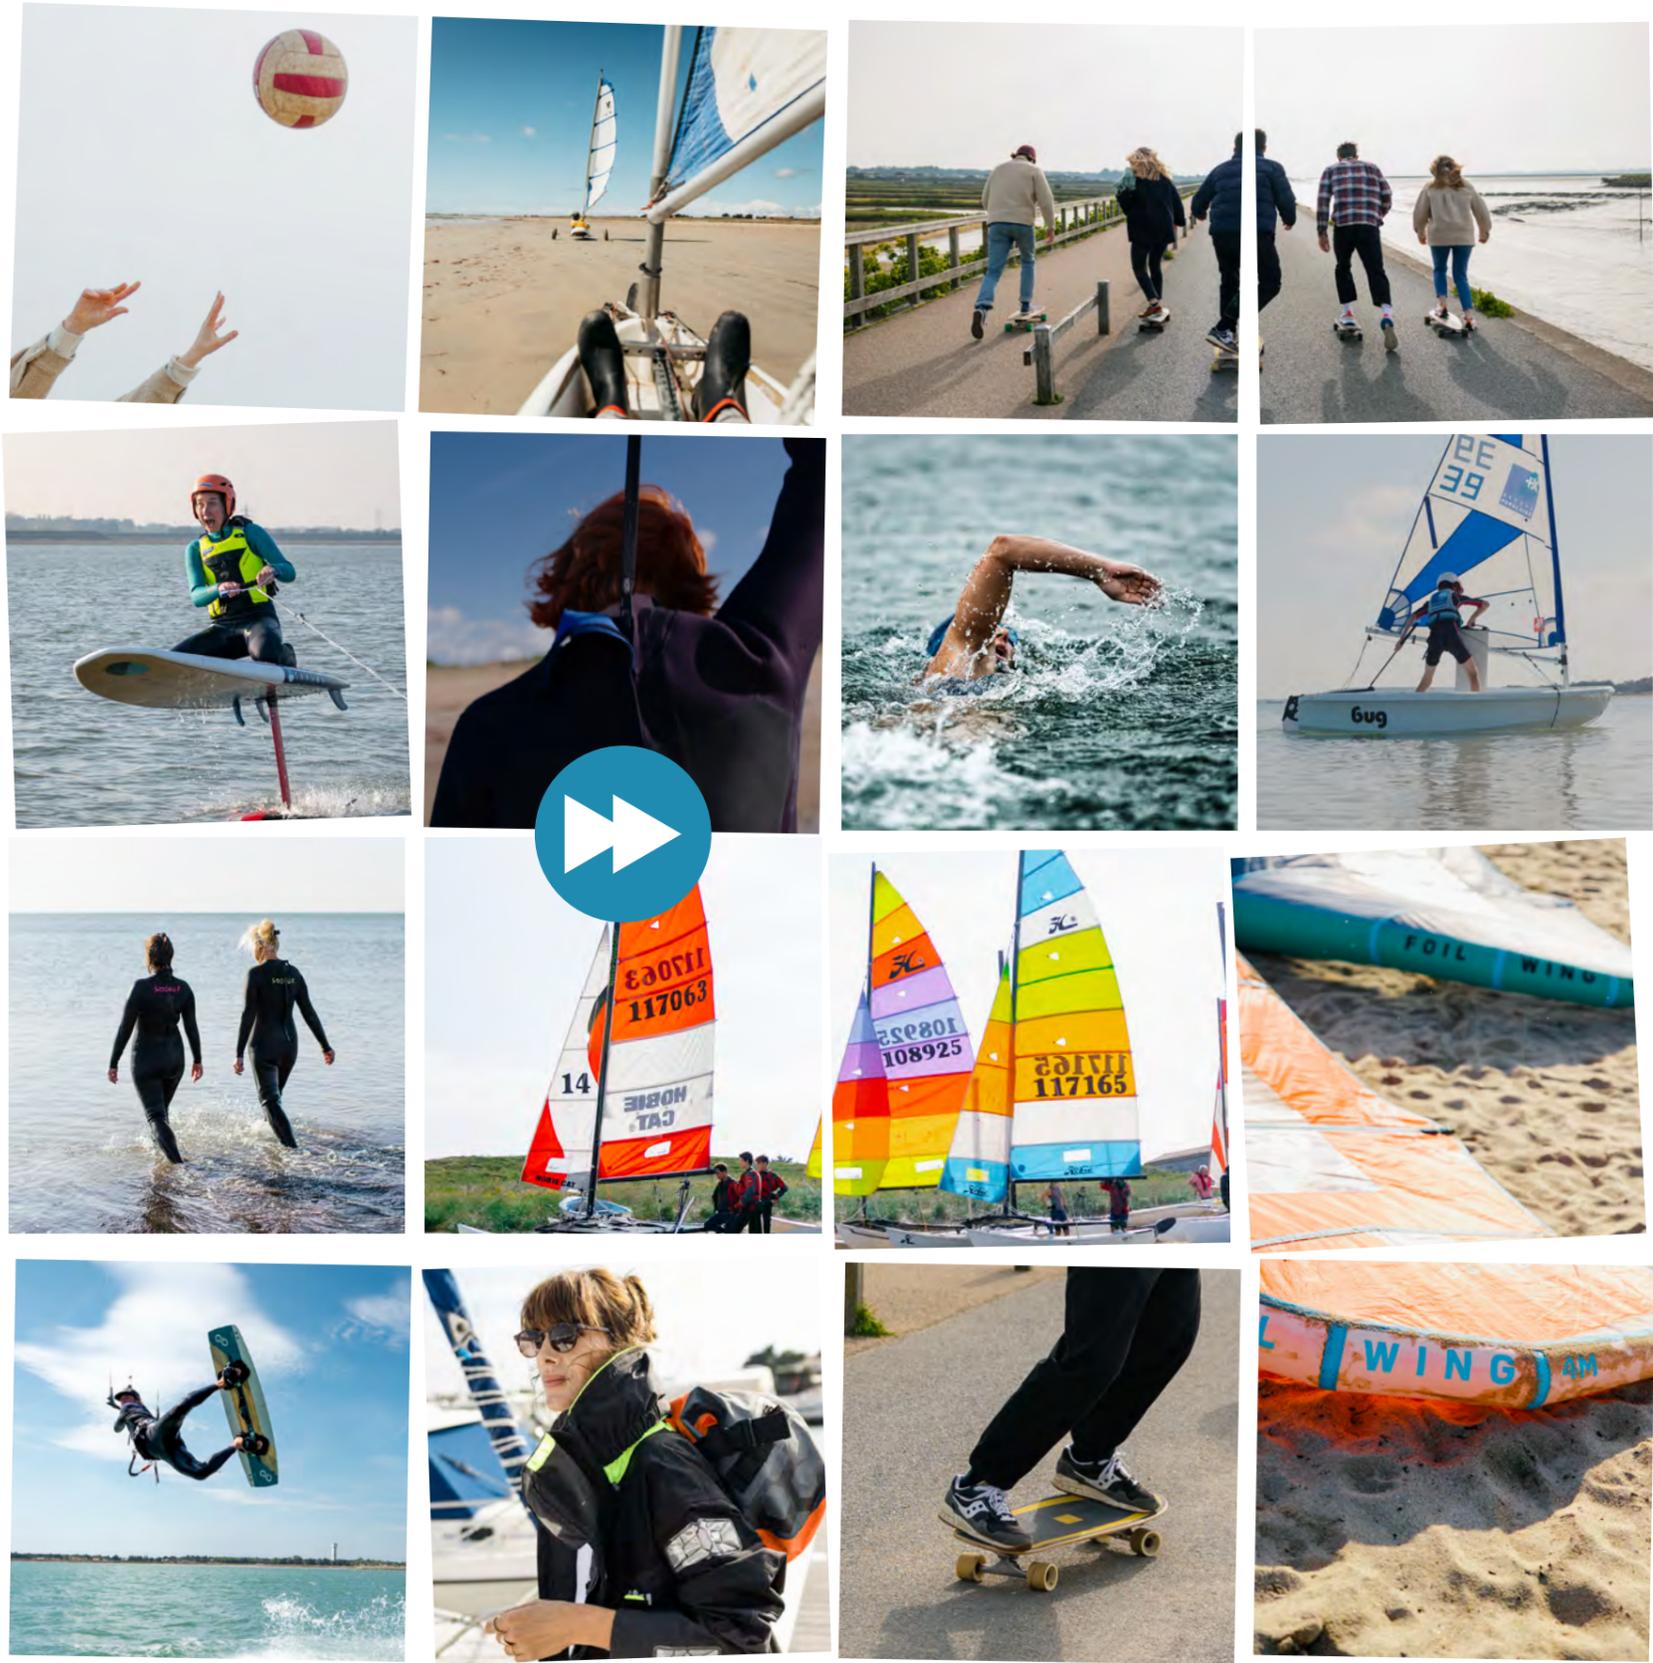

North of the island, salterns as far as the eye can see. A vast, silent expanse sheltered from the dune, crisscrossed by small channels directing sea water to coloured pools where salt crystallizes in the sun.

An amazing picture that light has fun changing endlessly according to hours and seasons. It's sweet to lose your way pedalling in this natural maze, in the middle of nowhere, out of time.

Go on a sensory journey in the harbour of L'Herbaudière

The former pilot boat shed has become today Noirmoutier Island's major fishing harbour. Every day, nearly a hundred or so boats unload along the wharves of the fish auction market the fish and shellfish caught at sea. You should stroll about the wharves, your senses on alert. Feel the open sea air and the smells of the sea, listen to the rustling noises of the harbour, admire the colours of the boats and local shops. And also taste the specialities of the bars and restaurants, to finally get at a comforting form of authenticity.

THE Island

OF SENSATIONS

Get your fill of energy!

Finding yourself back also involves walking, running, confronting with the elements... There are a thousand ways to exert yourself on Noirmoutier Island which includes magical spots where to indulge in all kinds of land and sea activities, from the most conventional to the most exhilarating. Here, nature is invigorating and time speeds up.

Take off in Barbâtre

It's in Barbâtre that you can pit yourself against the wind of the ocean: Bourgneuf Bay is known from kitesurfers from the world over. This hot spot of aerial water sports welcomes both beginners and experienced enthusiasts looking for new thrills. With your windfoil or your kiteboard, it's time to fly off and forget everything in front of the infinite of the horizon.

Take some height at Les Éloux Wood

Maritime pines, holm oaks, strawberry trees, dog rose bushes and salt spray. Between L'Epine and La Guérinière, Les Éloux Wood stands in front of the ocean. Its sandy paths and rugged relief give rhythm to a hike under the shade of trees. You have to reach the highest point of the island, 23 metres above sea level, to enjoy the cost of your effort and make the most of a magnificent panorama over the Atlantic.

Hike in the sea at Morin Harbour

On the western coast, Morin Harbour. It's here that you get into the water for a bracing water walk, also called sea hike, toward La Bosse Beach. A moment of wellness and gentle physical exertion, your body submerged up to waist. The let-go sensation is encouraged by conscious breathing, in front of landscapes that take on a different look from the sea.

Run with the last lights of the day in Luzéronde

A long beach of fine sand near L'Herbaudière, a somewhat secret area behind the salterns. The perfect place for out-of-time running, alone with yourself, between the dune, the little wood of Luzéronde and the Atlantic. A moment of escape that should be lived in the evening to enjoy a magnificent sunset... Before ending with a restorative dive into the ocean.

Glide on water in front of La Chaise Wood

Certain moments, certain scenery lend themselves better to a quieter outing. With its beaches of turquoise waters lined with vintage bathing cabins, its seaside villas hidden by the trees, and its sandy paths, La Chaise Wood is an invitation to meditation. These atmospheres, with their subtle colours, should be enjoyed at sunset, standing on a paddle board and gliding along the coves.

An island even more beautiful in winter than in summer

Putting your life on pause and getting away. In a short film a few minutes long, Noirmoutier Island tells about four moments of discovery, reflecting a truth: be it winter or summer, you can take time to breathe on Noirmoutier Island.

Go on a winter jaunt through our immersive film

BRACING SOLITUDE

Getting away for an autumn day to enjoy the good invigorating taste of fresh oysters. It's at that time that they are the best and that you can enjoy them alone in the world, in front of a turbulent ocean.

BREATH OF ADRENALINE

Letting go and flying off, carried by the strength of headwinds. It's in Barbâtre, in Bourgneuf Bay, that you can indulge in kitesurfing to take some height and a good dose of adrenaline.

WARM MOMENT

On Noirmoutier Island, no two comforting moments are the same. A forest stroll with your dog, a moment of warmth by the fireside, here everything is a pretext for disconnection and cocooning moments.

SUN IN FLOWERS

The blossoming of mimosa trees, like a ray of sun in the misty winter sky.

An outburst of yellow that warms the heart and covers Noirmoutier Island. A sight to be admired from late February on the island which is referred to as Mimosa Island.

Jean-Marc, a surgeon in Nantes and a Barbâtre inhabitant

As a kid, Jean-Marc often spent holidays on Noirmoutier Island. He re-discovered it, years later, after a stay in Martinique: "It's over there that Marie and I took our first kitesurfing lessons. It was an instant crush. When we came back, we settled on the island to keep practising in the Barbâtre club." Jean-Marc and his wife did up an old fisherman's house. An anchoring point which allowed them to rebuild themselves and embrace a new lifestyle. In Barbâtre, they like to bike on the cycle path running along the marsh to watch the birds. And take the Gois causeway, as soon as possible, to immerse themselves in the mystical atmosphere of this road which appears and disappears at the whim of the tide.

Jean-Marc's favourite: the forest around the water tower, with its sandy soil and its pines, magnificent in autumn.

His fetish object: a kitesurf board, to let himself be carried away by the wind.

His ritual: go and see the sea, walking through a secret path, a lane of white sand lined with beachgrass.

Laure, manager of La Station de la Plage, a coffeeshop for community creators, in L'Épine.

Laure had the need to wake up in the morning with the smell of sea spray. After the first confinement, she left Bordeaux with her companion to settle in L'Épine. She was offered to take over a former gas station from the fifties: a golden opportunity for her who had always dreamed of creating a third place. She quickly launched her coffeeshop project highlighting creations by about thirty local artists, in addition to a thrift corner. Laure would also like to open in it a little tattoo lounge within a few months. "I experience a real feeling of pride when people come in for the first time in my coffeeshop. I like to make them discover the village of L'Épine where a true spirit of community and mutual aid prevails."

Laure's favourite: Morin harbour. A little hidden harbour, the ideal point of departure for a fishing outing with family or friends.

Her fetish object: an anchor, like her tattoo. A nod to the fact that she belongs to a family of Noirmoutier fishermen.

Her ritual: in summer, after closing the shop, going to the artisan market of L'Épine on Wednesday nights, to say hello to the shop creators, and then join friends to enjoy oysters or galettes and listen to good local music groups.

Steven, joint manager of the art and music bar Labaya

Steven's family has been living in La Guérinière for generations. For nothing in the world he would leave his village. In his eyes, the quietest, the warmest, the most authentic. "My dream would be to live in one of the windmills bordering La Guérinière. I love them, these little solitary turrets standing on the dune, facing the ocean." Steven also likes the balance between land and sea you have in La Guérinière: the pinewood of Les Éloux for long strolls with his dog and the harbour of Le Bonhomme for seafood tasting. Right where he used to spend whole afternoons fishing sole and bass with his grandfather.

Steven's favourite: the windmill stroll, on the dune, between Barbâtre and La Guérinière.

His fetish object: a skateboard, to move around in the nice town centre of La Guérinière.

His ritual: after having spent too much time for his liking on the mainland, once arrived on the Noirmoutier Island bridge, he yells at the top of his lungs. A liberating habit that dates back to childhood.

Sophie, a composer and piano teacher in Le Vieil, in Noirmoutier-en-Île

Noirmoutier Island has always had an influence on Sophie's music. She retranscribes all her childhood memories for the piano: the strolls in La Blanche Wood with her childminder Emilienne, when she was 4, and her encounters with Didi, an emblematic fisherman and quite a character in Le Vieil. Sophie makes no secret of it: she maintains an almost passionate relationship with this village that saw her grow up. She came back to settle there, many years later, and open a piano school. This is the place where, walking on La Madeleine Beach, her need to compose made itself felt: "This is not a brochure beach, it's a living beach, with its shellfish, its little seaweed of all colours..."

Sophie's favourite: the fishermen's cemetery in L'Herbaudière. A poetic, quiet place, where lie the Noirmoutier inhabitants whose lives were punctuated by the whims of the ocean.

Her fetish object: the sailor's compass of her father, a merchant navy captain. To hold the course.

Her ritual: after an absence, opening wide the windows to let in the smell of the tide.

The long time

On Noirmoutier Island, nature expresses itself in a patchwork of sumptuous landscapes that men have strived to preserve and, above all, to enhance over time. An indispensable approach to have this exceptional territory embedded in the long time and sustainability.

A RICH AND FRAGILE NATURE

Noirmoutier Island is first and foremost an island. A naturally protected area, even though its proximity to the mainland favoured human settlement. The first Noirmoutier inhabitants found here magnificent landscapes: long beaches lined with wild dunes, secluded coves, wetlands that they were able to convert to fertile lands and green forests: Les Eloux Wood and its maritime pines, La Chaise Wood and its majestic holm oaks.

DEVELOP

The Noirmoutier Island inhabitants have always taken advantage of the natural wealth of their territory. As far back as the year 600, the Benedictines developed salterns near their abbey. The saltworks now cover a third of the island and serve as natural shelter for a wild fauna living in close harmony with man.

In the Middle Ages, a first wave of voluntary drying made it possible to reclaim new land from the sea. In the eighteenth century, the island still further expanded thanks to the Dutch polder technique. The installation of seawalls redrew the geometry of the island and gave rise to the Müllembourg and Sebastopol polders, two biodiversity sanctuaries, today protected.

PROTECT

The time of major developments has ended. Now, these fragile ecosystems have to be maintained and protected. In 1994, Müllembourg Polder was listed as a state nature reserve. The following year, its management was entrusted to the Bird Protection League [LPO] that continues to take care of it today.

As for Sebastopol Polder, it was the subject of an extensive rehabilitation programme in the 1990s. It is now maintained and managed with the utmost care by the Noirmoutier Island Community of Municipalities. Turned into a regional nature reserve in 2008, it was integrated in 2017 into the Gois site, itself listed.

MONITOR

In 1999, the Noirmoutier Island Community of Municipalities created one of the very first French shore observatories. Its purpose? Measuring and monitoring the evolution of the coast and dunes in order to prevent marine erosion and submersion, while safeguarding biodiversity.

Another initiative to preserve the natural balance of the island is the better appraisal of tide marks: the natural debris deposited by the tide is essential to preserve the ecosystem. Debris is no longer cleaned out as it was the case in the past. With the same impetus, the National Forest Office has launched in 2022 an ambitious programme to limit the extension of the coastal trail and renaturalize the dunes of La Clère Beach.

The island inhabitants have also initiated many virtuous projects, such as the development of shared gardens, the opening of completely local grocer's shops or freight transport exclusively by sail, with zero carbon emission.

ENJOY AND PRESERVE

The beauties of Noirmoutier Island deserve to be protected. The numerous walking trails and bike paths are as many invitations to discover them at a gentle pace, without disturbing their fragile balance. All year through, territory facilitators offer guided visits and outings to explore the salterns, polders and many other natural riches of the island.

The moments in a day are just as many moments you can live your way and at your own pace on Noirmoutier Island.

INVIGORATING STROLL ALONGSIDE THE DUNES OF BARBÂTRE

From the bridge to the village of Barbâtre, a stroll between land and sea along the ocean. The sandy path undulates gently, the pine needles crack under the footsteps, sea spray reveals its scent in the raw light of the morning. Your dog is frolicking while you're breathing in a big breath of bracing air for a good start to the day.

THE SEA AS OPEN PLAN OFFICE

Studios moment. Here, everyone works at their own pace in the peace and quiet of a charming Noirmoutier house or in a coworking space in the heart of the salterns. Far away from the city stress, you can take advantage of the virtues of teleworking to take a step back, meet new people, find a new balance. An ideal setting, with perfect connections, to escape over a long autumn or spring weekend.

AWAKENING OF THE SENSES AT THE FRESH PRODUCE MARKET IN L'ÉPINE

Lunchtime is approaching, time to head for the market. Almost every day, the island hosts a small producers' market. Cupped oysters from Bourgneuf Bay, fish and seafood caught very close to the coasts, shellfish harvested on the foreshore, salt from the salterns, early potatoes from Noirmoutier... Fruit, vegetables, delicatessen: the stalls are overflowing with delicious fresh produce. The ideal opportunity to reconnect with your senses.

12:17

JOURNEY INTO THE PAST AT THE NOIRMOUTIER-EN-L'ÎLE HISTORIC CENTRE

The island's heritage is not only natural, it is also steeped in history. After visiting the fortified castle and Saint-Philbert Church, you lose your way with pleasure in the old sailors' district, Le Banzeau. Its little houses with blue shutters contrast with the large bourgeois houses, such as the Jacobsen Mansion, which has become the Maritime Heritage Centre, or General d'Elbée's hotel. The past comes to light at the turn of an alley, on an island of plural heritage.

Noirmoutier-en-l'Île labelled "small town of character" in 2022.

WALKING TO THE END OF LE DEVIN POINT

Heading for L'Epine: at the end of the road, south of the nice beach of Luzérunde, Le Devin Point juts into the ocean. A sublime stand-point to watch the waves break on the rocks, when the storm starts to blow.

NATURAL SPECTACLE AT THE GOIS PASSAGE

You must see it to believe it. This submersible road which disappears under the waves, as the tides come and go. An immutable appointment that cannot be missed, every day of the year. From the refuge beacons, these turrets which make it possible to get some height, you can watch a priceless sight: the natural link between the island and the mainland fades away completely, swallowed up by the ocean. It will take you a few hours to go shellfishing and gather what the tidewaters have generously left in their wake.

High—

INVIGORATING TASTING AT LE BONHOMME HARBOUR IN LA GUÉRINIÈRE

The charm of a traditional oyster farming harbour, the invigorating scent of fresh oysters. Here, you are oyster farmers from father to son, and oyster or mussel farming is an art that you pass on like a family secret. Seafood of exception, whether it is enjoyed with a glass of Muscadet wine on wooden tables in front of the stalls, or it is taken back home as a treat for your friends.

19:02

POETRY OF THE MOMENT IN FRONT OF THE SETTING SUN

The day comes to an end at the headland of L'Herbaudière, right by the blockhaus. A remnant of the Second World War, this place with a singular atmosphere has gradually been reclaimed by a nature that obeys no one. In front of the wild island of Le Pilier, the sun is setting with a gradation of soft colours. A magical timeless moment for you to enjoy.

You will at once fall under the spell of the Arthus-Bertrand Villa, just as spellbinding as the island. Fully renovated, this former palm grove turned into a mansion house and then a hotel will accommodate you, your family and friends, in an exceptional setting, in the heart of the Bois de la Chaise wood. From the first glance, you will be charmed by the large wooded park whose beauties will enchant your stay. The large reception rooms, the restaurant and the library thus open on a huge sunny terrace where it's nice to meet up in the shade of parasols. The swimming pool, the Japanese lodge and the resting corners have as decor the century-old palm trees and holm oaks whose welcome shade delicately protects from the hot Vendean sun. It's in the peace and quiet of this garden that you will enjoy rare and precious moments of relaxation.

In a harmoniously revisited Victorian style, the mansion house bears testimony to the family past as publishers of travel books since 1797. The passion for the sea and navy can be read in the very neat decoration of the eighteen large bedrooms. Featuring its own restaurant, the Arthus-Bertrand Villa offers you to discover simple and tasty dishes cooked by our chef who draws inspiration for his local and Vendean cuisine from the market stalls, with the island's fishermen and market gardeners. Once passed the gates of the Villa, you will immediately be enchanted by the atmosphere of the place - warm, convivial, serene, restful - and you will not feel like leaving...

Between dune and forest on a 10 ha plot of the French National Forestry Office (ONF), the three-star campsite Les Onchères will charm you by adapting to the pace of your holidays.

Visiting on a short stay (bike welcome label and motorhome stopover) or for a well-deserved rest, you will be able to opt for "true" camping among our 310 pitches with power supply or, for more comfort, among our 140 2-bedroom and 3-bedroom mobile homes.

Located in the municipality of Barbâtre, in the Vendée, your three-star campsite Les Onchères is the easiest one to access from the mainland.

A strategic spot for shellfishing with the famous Gois Passage just nearby, but also as starting point for your strolls or bike rides in complete safety.

Attentive welcome, including bike hire and bread depot, throughout the open period.

Make the most of the water park area integrated into the landscape for your relaxation with access to solariums or, for all ages, slides, wading pool and swimming pool.

3 playgrounds and 1 multisport court for children and adults alike. Of course, two access points allow you to get to Noirmoutier Island's 8 km of fine sand beaches in complete safety.

In high season, family activities are ensured by a team that listens to you.

And after a very busy day, a takeaway snack and a bar with terrace under the pines will fulfil your expectations.

As you can understand, the whole team of your three-star campsite Les Onchères is at your disposal for your next holidays on Noirmoutier Island.

We'll be happy to receive you on the jewel of the Atlantic to make you discover its beauties, in winter as in summer. The island's men and women have always farmed, fished and lived year round, taking great care of it. During your stay, be mindful of the fragility of its great natural spaces, of its dune cordons, of its land and sea flora and fauna. Make the most of the island's generosity and contribute with us to its preservation. You'll feel all the more like coming back for new bracing escapes.

See you very soon on our preserved island!
